

Computers are electronic equipments and have a powerful usable tools that provide a great help to its users. The computer works with logic numbers each one is zero or one and get make a large numbers of calculations quickly.

There are small computers and some more bigger than others, but each of them have a specific place to work and some more capacity of processing and storage data. These equipments provide a great help to access , edit and delete datas. We can access the internet through these machines and to gain more knowledge with the internet. Its divided by hardware and software the first is a physical part and the second is a program part. Nowadays we are totally dependents of these systems, you can to see a computer machine any where. this do certainly one of the most importants equipaments all over the world.